BATTLE FOR EGYPT BEGINS

BRITISH and Axis forces are grappling in a fierce battle for Egypt. West and south-west of Mersa Matruh Marshal Rommel has thrown in everything mobile at his disposal, and his attack represents the biggest Axis blow of the war for the Nile valley. The latest Cairo messages say that the clash is developing in intensity, but that it is impossible to throw much light on what is happening beyond that the main British positions have not been by-passed.

An official Rome statement claims that Axis troops advancing south-east of Mersa Matruh reached the coast road near the town.

There is no news of a third Axis column which was last reported crossing the Egyptian frontier 140 miles from the coast and opposite the Siwa Oasis, whence a desert track winds to Cairo.

The British Air Forces have launched a terrific offensive against Marshal Rommel's land forces, and even the heavier bombers have been switched from long-distance targets to join in the attack.—(Reuter.)

ARMOURED UNITS MEET

A Reuter despatch from Cario says: "The great battle for Egypt began yesterday afternoon with two main clashes. In one clash enemy armour met our battle groups south of Mersa Matruh, and in the second our armoured forces attacked a big enemy force further to the west. The main British positions have not been by-passed. The enemy is using everything mobile he can lay his hands on, including the Ariete and other mechanised Italian divisions. He drove east yesterday, and having allowed him to reach a certain point the British and Allied forces hit him hard.

"The battle is now developing in intensity, and at this opening stage of the biggest Axis bid for the Nile in this war it is at present impossible to throw much light on what is happening, nor can the nature of Allied forces taking part be stated other than that they are British, Allied, Dominion and Indian."

AXIS CLAIMS

BERLIN, Sunday.—The German News Agency states that bomber aircraft attacked British troop transports, columns on the march, as well as airfields and supply dépôts between Fuka and Burg el Arab, on Friday night. Bomb hits destroyed a large supply dépôt east of Fuka, and set a number of laden vehicles on fire, and the desert railway was broken at several points.

To-day's Italian communiqué says: "Yesterday Axis troops continued to advance south-east of Mersa Matruh and have reached the coast road about 30 kilometres to the east of Mersa Matruh. Several hundred prisoners were captured and several dozen tanks and several batteries were destroyed. Enemy motorised columns and communication junctions in the rear lines were hit by our bombers. In aerial combats five enemy 'planes were destroyed by German fighters. During operations on June 26-27 (Friday and Saturday) three of our 'planes were lost. The crew of one has been saved by a torpedo boat. In the Sicilian Channel six Spitfires attempting to attack one of our rescue seaplanes were intercepted by our escorting fighters, which shot down two of them in flames. In the Eastern Mediterranean an escorted enemy ship of 5,000 tons was hit by our torpedo carrying 'planes."—(Reuter.)

LONDON, Sunday—To-day's R.A.F. Middle East communiqué states: "Both our own and the enemy air forces were active over the battle area on Saturday. Our fighters made offensive sweeps and reconnaissances, together with low-level attacks on enemy ground forces and landing grounds. In one of these attacks on transport vehicles between Sidi Barrani and Mersa Matruh some laden troop transports were knocked out and enemy troops killed. Another successful attack was made from a low level on aircraft on Derna aerodrome. Two Me. 109's were destroyed during these operations."

To-day's Cairo communiqué reads: "Our forces closed with the enemy yesterday, and heavy fighting followed all day. Enemy armoured forces which had by-passed our positions west of Mersa Matruh were met by our battle groups. Some of our armoured forces attacked enemy armoured forces west of Matruh. The battle continues."

CAIRO, Sunday.—The A.P. Correspondent says:—The titanic desert battle for Egypt has raged unabated for 24 hours without a decision for either side, but with the Allied defenders holding firm. Fighting is mainly in the area south of Mersa Matruh, and is fluid in character, consisting largely of terrific duels between artillery and tanks. Each side set its guns against the adversary's tanks and armoured cars.

"Artillery is playing a greater part in the struggle now, infantry and fixed positions counting for less than in the earlier stages. The British forces, who earlier in the campaign suffered heavily from attacks by German artillery, especially the famous long-range 88 mm. cannon, have made up for the disadvantage by rushing a large number of newly-arrived guns, particularly an anti-tank six-pounder, to the front."

"WHEN VICTORY COMES"

Mr. L. S. Amery, Secretary for India, told a meeting in London last night of Yugoslavs, commemorating the Yugoslavian National Day, that when victory came, "and it may come like a thief in the night," it would bring to Yugoslavs the restoration, not only of their independence and identity, but would place them in an assured position of security.

PREPARING FOR AN ELECTION

OPPOSITION PARTIES

By a Staff Reporter.

DESPITE the authoritative statement denying that any decision has yet been taken by the Government concerning the holding of a general election, both Dail Opposition parties are reorganising their political machinery.

Following last week's meeting of the Administrative Council of the Labour Party, at which Captain Peadar Cowan was appointed Honorary Director of Organisation, the Labour Party yesterday opened a new campaign in Dublin. Public meetings were held at Portobello Bridge, Thomas street and Inchicore, and among the speakers were Mr. Seamus O'Farrell national organiser; Mr. Frank Robbins, of the Administrative Council; Dr. J. Hannigan, T.D., and Mr. D. Hanly, I.N.T.O. It is hoped that new branches of the party will be formed in every ward.

Preliminary steps also have been taken by the Fine Gael Party to establish effective election machinery. To-night at Blackrock Cross leaders of the party will address a public meeting.

Members of both parties to whom I spoke last night commented on the wording of the authoritative statement made in Dublin on Friday. The statement, it was pointed out, did not deny that an election was to be held, but stated simply that there was no truth in the rumour that "an election would be held on August 15."

General election or no general election—and most people agreed that an election in present circumstances would be unwise—both Fine Gael and Labour are determined not to be "caught on the hop."

HOW MUCH IS BID?

The Taoiseach, Mr. de Valera, will become an auctioneer next Thursday. Not alone has he agreed to declare open the Red Cross auction, to be held in the Gresham Hotel this week, but he has consented to accept the opening bids. Afterwards he will hand the mallet to a member of the Irish Auctioneers' and Estate Agents' Association.

LORD MAYORALTY OF DUBLIN

TO-NIGHT'S ELECTION

Will the Lord Mayorality of Dublin be decided by lot? This possibility may arise when the Corporation meets to-night to settle the issue.

The position of the parties is—Fine Gael, 13; Fianna Fail, 11; Independents, 6; Labour, 5. Under the new voting system the Labour condidate, Mr. M. O'Sullivan, will be eliminated at the outset, and the fight will be waged between the outgoing Lord Mayor, Alderman P. S. Doyle, T.D., Fine Gael, and Alderman Cormac Breathnac, T.D., Fianna Fail. Fianna Fail expects the support of a couple of the Independents, and should Labour also accord its support Alderman Breathnac would win by one vote. Alderman Doyle's supporters expect him to be elected for a second term by the same narrow margin.

RAIDS ON ENGLAND

Lord Glanely, the shipping magnate and racehorse owner, was killed on Saturday night in a raid on a West of England coast town. He was 74, and had only recently taken a house in the town for the summer, moving from his seat at Exning House, near Newmarket. The attack was one of several on places on the West and South coasts. Buildings were hit, but it was stated officially that the proportion of those killed was not large. Among the casualties were one or two wardens.

MEXICAN TANKERS SUNK

NEW YORK, Sunday.—Heavy loss of life is feared through the torpedoing and sinking of two Mexican tankers 50 miles off the coast of Mexico, says a Mexico report. Formerly Italian vessels, the tankers were seized last year. Naval and air patrols are searching for the U-boats responsible, and the coastal district of the State of Vera Cruz has been put in a state of alert in case the U-boats shell the area.—(Reuter.)

WASHINGTON, Sunday.—The Navy Department announces that three U.S. merchantmen have been sunk. There were no survivors from one of them.—(Reuter.)

L.D.F. MAN SHOT DEAD

Mr. John Ryan (22), bank clerk, employed in the William street, Limerick, branch of the Munster and Leinster Bank, was shot dead accidentally while engaged at L.D.F. manœuvres at Glenstal, County Limerick, yesterday. He was a son of Doctor Ryan, of Woodvale, Blarney.

ALIEN PENETRATION

Anti-Semitic pamphlets and literature calling for a tightening of the laws regarding aliens were distributed by an organisation in Dublin over the week-end. The organisation appealed for funds, and spoke of the alien penetration of the money-lending and credit-purchasing trades. Another leaflet in similar strain was displayed in a shop window in Dublin.

JOINT STATEMENT OF WAR POLICY

UNITED NATIONS MORE CONFIDENT

MR. CHURCHILL, having flown the Atlantic after his conversations with President Roosevelt, arrived in London on Saturday afternoon.

A joint statement by President Roosevelt and the British Premier claimed that the "coming operations" which they have framed "will divert German strength from the attack on Russia."

Also it expressed their confidence that "the overall picture is more favourable to victory" than it was in August or December of last year.

The War Cabinet has asked Mr. Churchill to wind up the debate on Sir John Wardlaw Milne's vote of no confidence in the Government.

TO DIVERT GERMAN STRENGTH

The text of the joint statement is as follows:—

"The week of conferences between the President and the Prime Minister covered very fully all the major problems of the war which is conducted by the United Nations on every continent and in every sea.

"We have taken full cognizance of our disadvantages, as well as our advantages. We do not under-rate the task. We have conducted our conferences with the full knowledge of the power and resourcefulness of our enemies.

"In the matter of the production of munitions of all kinds, the survey gives, on the whole, an optimistic picture. The previously planned monthly output has not reached the maximum, but is fast approaching it on schedule.

"Because of the wide extension of the war to all parts of the world, transportation of the fighting forces, together with the transportation of munitions of war and supplies, still constitutes the major problem of the United Nations.

"Submarine warfare on the part of the Axis continues to take a heavy toll of cargo ships. The actual production of new tonnage is greatly increasing month by month. It is hoped that, as a result of the steps planned at this conference, our respective navies will further reduce the toll of merchant shipping.

"The United Nations have never been in such hearty and detailed agreement on plans for winning the war as they are to-day.

"We recognise and applaud the Russian resistance to the main attack being made by Germany, and we rejoice in the magnificent resistance of the Chinese Army. Detailed discussions were held with our military advisers on methods to be adopted against Japan and for the relief of China.

"While our plans, for obvious reasons, cannot be disclosed, it can be said that the coming operations, which were discussed in detail at our Washington conferences between ourselves and our respective military advisers, will divert German strength from the attack on Russia.

"The Prime Minister and the President have met twice before—first in August, 1941, and again in December, 1941. There is no doubt in their minds that the overall picture is more favourable to victory than it was either in August or December of last year."

AMERICAN VIEW

WASHINGTON, Sunday.—"The joint statement makes no mention of a problem which has been debated here—the appointment of a supreme commander to take charge of operations when the United Nations seize the initiative in Europe," says Reuter. The time in which to make such an appointment is short, and there must be no waiting until, as in the last war, events thrust a Foch upon the war effort. As the seat of the Combined Chief of Staffs' Committee, Washington has become the seat of the United Nations' strategy, providing both inter-serve co-operation and international co-operation for Britain and the United States.

The Washington Post says that "no evidence exists that the conduct of this war outside Russia and China could be left in better hands than those of Mr. Churchill and the President. To be sure, they are no military geniuses, and they have made mistakes. But the United Nations—the fighting men and the men behind the lines—have implicit faith in their leadership. That must be the yardstick for judgment."

SECOND FRONT

Leading members of Congress interpreted the joint statement as meaning that a second front is in the offing.

Senator Connally, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said that he felt certain they were planning to take steps "which will make our military and naval resources most effective while aiding the gallant and heroic Russian armies." He hoped that the statement meant that "the United Nations would concentrate their efforts in one strong point."

Mr. Martin, Minority Leader of the House of Representatives, said:—"Everything possible must be done to help Russia to shorten the war."

The pledge of "coming operations" to aid Russia is the point which is most strongly emphasised to-day in both Press and radio comment. It is taken as a sign that plans for a second front are being developed.

The first sign of steps to counter the menace of Axis submarines was seen in an appeal broadcast last night to yachts and small craft owners to give their services to fight that menace.—(Reuter.)

MOSCOW, Sunday. — All quarters here are counting on the materialisation of a second front in Europe. President Roosevelt's and Mr. Churchill's joint statement on "coming operations to divert German strength from Russia" is regarded as the normal follow-up to M. Molotov's talks in London and Washington.

Lieut.-General Tikhanov, who holds one of the most important posts in the Red Army, emphasised to British and American pressmen yesterday that "the sooner a second front is started the better."—(Reuter.)

NO CONFIDENCE

Mr. Churchill already has been in close consultation with War Cabinet colleagues on the coming House of Commons debate, in which, for the first time since he became Premier, he must face a "No Confidence" motion, says the Press Association. His principal advisers have included Mr. Attlee, Deputy Prime Minister; Sir Stafford Crippa, Leader of the House, and Brigadier Harvie Watt, the Premier's Parliamentary Private Secretary. They and others have given him their estimate of the reactions of the rank and file of members to Sir John Wardlaw Milne's motion. It is probable that they do not take too grave a view of this motion, tabled with the support of only 18 members.

The joint statement deals, if rather unspecifically, with matters which are, at any rate in part, an answer to some of the criticisms of the Government's policy, and some amplification of this statement—which both the Commons and the country would be eager to hear—may be necessary if Mr. Churchill is to develop his case adequately.

Among the maze of motions on the order paper—none of which, apart from Sir John Wardlaw Milne's, is likely to be called—are some dealing with supply questions, leadership and strategy.

Present arrangements are that Mr. Churchill will wind up the debate on the second day. Mr. Oliver Lyttelton, Minister of Production, will be the first Government spokesman, and Sir Archibald Sinclair, Air Minister, will reply to any criticisms of the Royal Air Force and to allegations of over-confident official statements which may have been falsified by events.

Captain Kelly Rogers, pilot of the Bristol flying boat in which Mr. Churchill made his journey, disclosed that Mr. Churchill took the controls for a quarter of an hour, just before dinner on Friday. "It was a perfect trip," said Captain Rogers.

ANOTHER DUBLIN FIRE

BRIGADE'S NEATEST JOB

Dublin's most recent fire destroyed the Tara Dairy, Townsend street, early yesterday.

Unusual features associated with it were its proximity to the Fire Brigade Central Station, a stone's throw away, and the fact that it was reported to the station by a member of a brigade officer's family.

It was the brigade's neatest job in years. Within one minute of receiving the alarm, a section was pouring water into the blaze, and, although the dairy itself was destroyed, the firemen prevented even the breaking of a pane of glass in two upper storeys of the premises.

With a fairly large quantity of butter, sweets and other highly inflammable goods creating flames which belched several yards out into the street, the outbreak gave the brigade a hard battle for an hour, but it was confined as neatly as if it were in a tin box, and the members of three families living overhead, who had left hurriedly in their night clothes, were able to go back to sleep.

The proprietress of the premises, Mrs. Ivor, of Leitrim, is at present taking part in a pilgrimage.

BIG ATHLONE PARADE

The biggest parade ever witnessed in Athlone took place yesterday, when "Step Together Week" was opened. Five thousand troops, L.D.F., L.S.F., Red Cross, Knights of Malta, and A.R.P. Services took part, the salute being taken by Mr. Oscar Traynor, Minister for Defence. On the platform with the Minister were Lieutenant-General D. MacKenna, Cnief of Staff; Colonel F. McCorley, Colonel N. McNeill, Major F. O'Connor, Commandant J. J. Kingston, Commandant E. P. Tierney, and Commandant P. J. Butler. Mass was celebrated in the barrack square prior to the parade, and a Church of Ireland Service was also held. Major C. McAllister had charge of the parade.

Mr. Traynor, at a dinner held in the barracks afterwards, referred to the magnificent material which he saw in the ranks, material that would make first-rate defenders of freedom. He was also impressed, in an unfavourable way, with the number of young able-bodied men who were on the sidewalks. It was a sad commentary on their civic spirit when so many others were walking in the ranks

PLOTHOLDERS' PROTEST

He regretted that the Polo Ground was broken up for the purpose of plots, and the plotholders should have been given a place nearer to Islandbridge, where the 'buses passed, Alderman A. Byrne, T.D., stated when he addressed a meeting of 200 plotholders at the Polo Ground last Saturday to protest against the manner in which cattle and deer were allowed to trample on their allotments.

Alderman Byrne promised that he would take up the matter with the Board of Works and raise it also in the Dail.

Later in the evening the Lord Mayor, Alderman P. S. Doyle, T.D., addressed a meeting of plotholders, and he promised to give them all the support that he could. General R. Mulcahy, T.D., in a letter expressing his inability to attend, also promised his support.

Mr. James Pearson presided.

IRISH VESSEL'S TRIAL RUN

The s.s. Irish Plane (7,500 tons) had a trial trip in Dublin Bay. Passengers on the trip included Mr. de Valera, Mr. Frank Aiken, Minister for the Co-ordination of Defence Measures; Lieutenant Rory de Valera, Terry de Valera, and Master O'Hanlon, Taxing Master. They were welcomed on board by Captain Hill Wilson, master of the vessel. Also on board were Mr. John Leyden, Chairman, Irish Shipping, Ltd., and Mrs. Leyden; Mr. J. J. McElligott, Secretary, Department of Finance, and Mrs. McElligott; Captain A. S. Gordon and Mrs. Gordon; Mr. H. Lenehan, Marine Superintendent; Captain Black, Captain Pollock, Mrs. Grant, Master J. Gordon, H. Montgomery, J. Dolan.

The Irish Plane has a crew of thirty-four Irishmen.

TO BLOW UP U.S. FACTORIES

LANDED FROM U-BOATS

NEW YORK, Sunday. — German saboteurs have been landed from U-boats on the American coast with elaborate plans to sabotage factories, railways and other vital war works. Eight of these alleged agents have been arrested, four of them having got as far as Chicago.

Mr. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said that they came ashore in rubber boats from submarines, which approached to within 100 yards of the coast. The submarines left France late in May. Four of the men landed on Long Island on June 13, and the others at Jacksonville Beach, Florida.

The men, he said, had supplies of explosives, "some of a most exceptional type." They were also well supplied with funds, one group having £22,500 and the other £14,500.

All the men had previously lived in America, and two hold United States citizenship. Under the war-time espionage law, all might be subject to the death penalty.

Mr. Hoover disclosed that the men made a number of trips from the submarine to the shore in rubber boats, carrying sabotage equipment. They changed into American-made clothes, buried the explosives in the sand, and then made their way separately into New York City. All eight, he said, made full confessions.—(Reuter.)

THEY WENT TO THE SEA!

By a Staff Reporter.

"Push . . . . Push . . ."

Some of the younger spirits turned the subconscious slogan of thousands of people yesterday into a vocal refrain, sung to the tempo of turning pedals. In steady file or uneasy line, in groups or just singly, and in the throes of a wriggle, the cyclist evacuees of Dublin's second summer Sunday spread themselves over the roads of the county in varying stages of dress or undress.

Like the tens of thousands, many of whom defied their week-old sorry experience of being left behind when transport had become exhausted, the majority of the cyclists hit the seaside at some spot or other, to join the travel-defiant brigades who had stood for hours in queues stretching around city street corners for the privilege of a seat in a 'bus or tram to take them away from the swelter. An urge nearly as strong as fear must have assisted many people to survive the discomforts of the queues—discomforts in no way relieved by squalling children competing with the lonest efforts of a seeming multitude of street singers and musicians. It was like old times, except that the policeman at the head of each queue was not a bit talkative.

That was the going-away story. The coming back was a very much more anxious and exciting business, and transport officials, with Garda assistance, had an arduous evening seeing the visitors away, in appearance somewhat distressed, overheated, and giving the impression that crushed rose-petals sometimes convey, but thankful for the insistence with which conductors applied the new travel rule against crashers and dodgers. The majority of the trippers were carried home. Those who went to no trouble and stayed at home found the canal almost as interesting—to watch or to sample.

FURTHER RAID ON BREMEN

Bremen, the objective of last Thursday night's big raid, was heavily attacked on Saturday night by British bombers.

According to the Air Ministry: "A strong force of bombers were over north-west Germany, with Bremen as the main target. Large fires were left burning.

"Aircraft of Fighter Command attacked enemy airfield and other targets in occupied France and enemy shipping off the French coast. Off Cherbourg one ship was bombed and set on fire.

"From these operations nine aircraft of Bomber Command and two of Fighter Command are missing."

The German News Agency yesterday stated:—"British bombers last night dropped high explosive and incendiary bombs over the north west German coastal area. Damage was done, particularly in the residential quarters of the town of Bremen. According to information so far to hand, six of the attacking bombers were shot down.

"Formations of German bombers last night carried out effective attacks against a town on the Bristol Channel."—(Reuter.)

"CHINESE TRAPPED"—Tokyo

TOKYO, Sunday.—A claim that the Chinese Fourth Army has been trapped on the right bank of the Siwang River, in the Southern Fuchow area of Kiangsi Province, is made by the Japanese. "Marching through heavy rain," says a communiqué from the Central China headquarters by the Domei News Agency. "The Japanese encircled the Chinese troops at dawn yesterday.

The Chinese High Command announced the recapture of Linhsien, in Honan Province, on June 25, when, it stated, over 1,000 Japanese were killed and wounded. The following day the Chinese forestalled an enemy come-back attempt.

In North-East Kiangsi the Japanese captured Yukan on June 25, but fighting is proceeding on the outskirts.—(Reuter.)

GERMAN KHARKOV PUSH HALTED

GERMAN radio claimed last night that on the Sebastopol front German shock troops at dawn yesterday took the village of Galtami, on the eastern shore of Severnaya Bay. According to Reuter, the Russian defence stands firm, and over the week-end Axis efforts were relaxed while fresh reserves were hurried from the rear. "German tank losses reached 140 in concentrated attacks launched simultaneously against the northern and southern bays of the wide Sebastopol anchorage," the Agency states.

The Red Army claims to have halted the German push aimed through Kupyansk towards the main Voronezh-Rostov railway and the Red Army oil line from the latter city, and in some sectors Marshal Timoshenko's troops are counter-attacking and have already dislodged the enemy from a number of sectors. The recapture of a number of populated points on the Kharkov front was also claimed.—(Reuter.)

HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTING

MOSCOW, Sunday.—Fierce hand-to-hand fighting developed when the Germans launched an offensive against the left flank of one sector of the Kharkov front, Izvestia reports to-day.

"German tanks attempted to thrust forward towards an important line, but failed to break through, and were forced on the defensive. Later, Soviet troops launched a vigorous counter-attack and dislodged the Germans from the positions they had captured. Air fighting went on continuously during the day."

In another sector Soviet infantry, supported by tanks, launched a powerful counter-attack, and the Germans were driven back, suffering heavy losses in men and material. Fighting continues on the left flank here, the enemy constantly throwing in reserves and making repeated attempts, despite his losses, to break the Soviet defences.

"In some sectors," a Red Star despatch says, "Marshal Von Bock's troops again tried to advance, using tanks, but were checked. In one sector they lost 30 tanks and 850 soldiers. In the neighbouring sector the Germans launched an offensive against a railway station, attempting to force a river for this purpose. German tanks and infantry were repulsed and, forced back from the river with heavy losses, were forced to pass to the defensive.

"In 22 air fights yesterday over the field of action, 16 enemy 'planes were destroyed and 10 damaged. In addition, Soviet aircraft disabled 32 tanks."—(Reuter.)

AT SEBASTOPOL

From the Sebastopol front Red Star says that the Germans lost more than 140 tanks when the fortress beat off concentrated attacks launched simultaneously, with the object of reaching the southern and northern bays. Soviet artillery concentrated an intense fire, forming a barrier against which all the enemy attacks were smashed. Soviet infantry, in their dug-outs and trenches, also resisted stubbornly. In three days a company of anti-tank riflemen disabled 23 tanks. Even when the German tanks thundered over their trenches the Soviet infantry held their ground without retreating a single step. German tank troops, having sustained heavy losses, no longer now attempt to break through the steel ring of the defences by their former methods. The tanks never approach closer than 600 to 700 yards to the Soviet lines, and have been converted into armoured gun emplacements which support their infantry attacks from a distance.—(Reuter.)

"A Soviet tank and a group of Red Army infantry fought for three days in the German rear and returned to the Soviet lines bringing prisoners and valuable documents," says Moscow radio. "While behind the enemy lines they accounted for some 500 Germans and destroyed five anti-tank guns, eight mortars and 14 pillboxes. Soviet troops on the Kalinin front—staging similar counter-attacks from the rear—laid an ambush, so that the Germans when they attacked found themselves fired upon from the rear and retreated with heavy losses."—(Reuter.)

A High Command announcement from Herr Hitler's headquarters says that Soviet armies, after thrusting across the Volkhov River, north of Lake Ilmen, succeeded in driving a deep wedge in the German defence front. "German troops and S.S. armed detachments, as well as Spanish, Dutch and Flemish volunteer units, supported by the Luftwaffe, cut off these enemy troops from their rear communications after bitter fighting in most difficult conditions of weather and terrain After closing in on them they have to-day completed their final annihilation."

"The large scale enemy offensive to cross the Volkhov river, with the object of relieving Leningrad, has collapsed, and resulted in a heavy defeat for the enemy. The main brunt of this heavy fighting was borne by infantry and sappers.

32,759 PRISONERS

"According to reports so far received the enemy lost 32,759 prisoners, 649 guns, 171 tanks, 2,904 machine-guns, grenade-throwers and tommy guns, as well as a large quantity of other war material. Enemy losses in dead are far greater than the total of prisoners taken."—(Reuter.)

To-day's German communique says: "On the eastern front German and Rumanian troops at Sebastopol have thrown the enemy out of several strongly fortified heights in heavy pill-box fighting. Through the success of this attack the enemy has been forced to abandon an important defensive sector. The Luftwaffe continued to bombard with strong forces fortifications and field positions east of the town, as well as an aerodrome in the fortress. South-east of Feodosiya a Soviet destroyer was hit by a bomb of heavy calibre.

"On the Volkhov sector an encircled enemy force is at the point of annihilation. Strong enemy attacks against a bridgehead have collapsed. The enemy suffered heavy casualties and several tanks were shot up.

"In the waters of the Gulf of Finland several small merchant ships were either sunk or set on fire by bomber aircraft. Night attacks by bomber formations against shipping targets on the central Don caused devastation and fires in railway buildings."—(Reuter.)

LONDON, Sunday. — Soviet forces attempted a diversionary landing yesterday morning at Taman, near Kerch, in the Crimea, said German Radio to-night. The attempt was frustrated, two ships being sunk, said the announcer. At Sebastopol Rumanian troops forced their way across a river and reached Galtani, most northerly point of Severnaya Bay, it is claimed.—(Associated Press.)

SOVIET COMMUNIQUE

MOSCOW, Sunday. — To-night's Soviet communiqué states: "During June 28 in the Kursk direction fighting took place with the German Fascist troops, who have passed to the offensive. On the Sebastopol sector of the front our troops repelled enemy attacks.

"During the week ending June 27 384 enemy aircraft were destroyed in air combat, on enemy aerodromes and by anti-aircraft gunfire. Our losses were 171 aircraft."—(Reuter.)

L.D.F. COMFORTS

Yet another warning against complacency was delivered by the Minister for Defence, Mr. Oscar Traynor, when he opened the first L.D.F. sports, in aid of the L.D.F. Comforts Fund, at the O'Connell School Sports Ground, Clontarf, on Saturday last.

"We have, up to this moment, been mercifully spared the sorrows and sufferings which follow in the train of war," he said. "but we have no right to feel certain, nor have we any guarantee that these sorrows and sufferings can never reach us. The short period of 24 hours, and even less, would suffice to cast us from the peace which we enjoy to-day into the horrible inferno of warfare, which has engulfed so many other nations."

It was to meet such an exigency, he continued, that they had been appealing so strongly to the young manhood of their nation to come forward and be trained to defend their homes. Their training had entailed the sacrifice of much of their time, and anything that the general public could do should be done to show that their patriotic action was appreciated.

A guard of honour, drawn from a platoon of "C" Company of the 42nd Rifle Battalion, L.D.F. under Platoon Leader J. Milner, was inspected by the Minister, who was accompanied by Lieut.-General D. McKenna, Chief of Staff, and the Adjutant-General, Colonel Liam Hayes.

Features of the sports, which continued throughout yesterday, were a gymkhana and a display of Sokol drill by an Army team. Music was supplied by the No. 1 Army Band, the Artane School Band, and by Girl Pipers. Last night "Barrack Variety," presented by its originators from Portobello Barracks, included the "Portobello Ballet."

Among those present were:—Father Casey, Chaplain to the Defence Forces; Major J. Lawless, Comdt. P. J. McDonagh, Mrs. Oscar Traynor, Lady Yarrow, Mrs. Cormac Breathnach, Mrs. S. O'Donovan, Chairman of the Ladies' Committee; Archdeacon McMahon, and Father Bernadine.

RED CROSS WANTS MEN

Over 650 recruits have joined the Red Cross following Red Cross Week and Pembroke Civil Week, held this month. There are now 1,017 men and 2,482 women in the City and County of Dublin Division. The best response has come from Rathmines, where there were 267 volunteers in one week mostly women. The Central Depôt, open at Grafton street during Red Cross Week received the signatures of just over a hundred, again mostly women. In Drumcondra however, Red Cross Week recruited an entire division of eighty men.

Mr. Cathal Lockney, secretary to the Dublin City and County area, told an Irish Times reporter that, despite all their efforts, the prejudice which men seem to hold against the Red Cross was still apparent. Everywhere we go we are told that the Red Cross is a woman's organisation but in actual fact male members will have to share the dangers with the front-line soldier. They will go into the front lines, carrying not guns, but stretchers, and this sort of work needs courage of a high degree."

Even people who do not think they can give their full time to the society can be trained in first-aid, and will be able to help their own families according to Mr. Lockney. Those seeking training for this purpose, however, will have to pay the original membership fee.

Recruiting for the Co-operators' Division, the formation of which was announced early this month by Mr. Rory Henderson, County Divisional Director, has not been encouraging. Recruits in this section will be those who cannot give full-time service, but who are willing to undertake auxiliary duties in an emergency.

FISHING INDUSTRY

"There is nothing impossible or visionary about restoring the Irish fishing industry—only hard work is needed," declared Dr. Eoin MacNeill in a lecture to the Maritime Institute of Ireland on "The Sea in Irish History."

The restoration, he said, must be done by the younger generation, with the realisation on their part that it was a great work and that seamanship was a glorious thing. The resources were there, and it was quite possible to put the industry on as strong a footing as ever it was.

Touching on the history of the Irish industry, he recalled that at one time Irish instructors were teaching the sea-going people of Scotland in the catching and curing fish: but after the Union, he said, the industry got no encouragement, and repeated efforts to raise a million pounds' loan for the development of Irish fisheries had failed because the British thought more of Grimsby than of Ireland.

Complaining that neither of the Irish Governments had any idea of the value of the sea, he said that he had been told at one time that the three miles' territorial limit could not be exceeded; yet other countries in Europe had, by agreement, extended their territorial waters to 12 miles.

GARDEN FETE

A successful garden fête in aid of Church funds was held on Saturday last in the grounds of All Saints' Vicarage, Grangegorman, Phibsborough road, Dublin. Lady Maffey, who performed the opening ceremony, congratulated the workers on their efforts. A vote of thanks, proposed by Mr. W. Warren, churchwarden, was seconded by Mr. R. A. Harrison, secretary, Select Vestry.

The various stalls did satisfactory business during the afternoon. Games were organised by Girl Guides and members of the Boys' Brigade, and the Band of the 6th Company, Boys' Brigade, played throughout the function. The principal helpers were:—Country Produce — Mrs. Fitzhardinge-Wintle. Refreshments—Miss E. King and Mr. E. W. Hasiam. Sweets—Mrs. Armstrong. China—Mrs. Harrison. White Elephant—Miss Duffield. Books—Miss Potts.

A.F.S. APPEAL

Appealing for recruits for the A.F.S. at a meeting on the Beach road, Sandymount, Dublin, last night, after a display by the Auxiliary Fire Brigade, Major Comerford, Chief of the Dublin Fire Brigade, said that, in the Pembroke area, there would be, under emergency conditions, two auxiliary fire stations. But, at present, the total active A.F.S. personnel in the area was only 33, and at least 100 would be necessary.

Colonel Sean O'Sullivan, Military Director, A.R.P., said that it was estimated that at least 15,000 people, trained in the use of the stirrup hand-pumps and other methods of dealing with incendiary bombs, would be needed to provide an efficient local fire-prevention organisation for a city the size of Dublin. Many more volunteers were needed.

The Coming Debate

Mr. Winston Churchill's return from his previous American trips was almost in the nature of a triumphal procession. His return on Saturday was shorn of much of its glory, because he came back to a disquieted and uneasy people. Yesterday's British newspapers were unanimous on one subject—the need of a detailed inquiry into the rapid reversal of fortune in Libya and of a plain statement by the Prime Minister. For the first time since the war began, Mr. Churchill's Government is confronted with that bogy of democratic Governments, a motion of "no confidence." It has not strong backing among members of the House of Commons, so far as numbers are concerned: only eighteen names in all are associated with it so far; but the critics include some of the most forcible speakers in the House—with others, Sir Roger Keyes and Mr. Hore-Belisha. The decision, of course, will not go against the Government: the motion will be rejected by a sweeping majority; but the fact that it has been tabled at all indicates how deeply Parliament and people have been stirred. Manifestly, many things occurred in the Western Desert that ought not to have happened. The newspapers make no secret of their view that the British generalship was poor: Field-Marshal Rommel was permitted to wrest the initiative from his opponents with excessive ease, and, having wrested it, to retain it. The British armament was not up to the standard of the German, although the people had been encouraged to believe that it was in every respect superior. Several departments of State will come under fire in the course of the censure motion—to which, it is understood, Mr. Churchill himself will reply. The Ministry of Supply will be scrutinised in an effort to learn why not merely the quantity, but the quality, of the British arms proved to be disappointing. It will be asked whether there was, in fact, the necessary degree of co-operation between the Eighth Army and the Royal Air Force. Mr. Churchill will have to face criticism for his absence, with the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, at a moment when the rapidly changing aspect of the North African battle would appear to call for swift and fundamental decisions at home. Mr. Churchill's own prestige remains very high; but the Libyan campaign has revived the fear, growing in insistence for some months past, that he is trying to accomplish too much. He is not merely Prime Minister, but also Minister of Defence, and either post is a "whole-time job." It is recommended in the Press, and indubitably will be urged in Parliament, that he ought to hand over the portfolio of Defence to somebody else, reserving to himself the all-important functions of the Premiership. It will be suggested, too, that the time is ripe for the creation of something on the lines of the German General Staff to co-ordinate and control the various fighting Services—a reform which would dispense with the need of a Ministry of Defence. On these subjects the Sunday newspapers show striking unanimity; some of them argue that, until the mystery of North Africa is cleared up and the lessons of the bouleversement learned, there ought to be no more talk of a "second front" on the European continent. Nothing shows more conspicuously how profoundly the people of Great Britain have been disappointed by the news of the past week. Eight days ago the newspapers were full of anticipation of a "second front." Yesterday not even the high projects outlined in the joint Anglo-American statement could compete for space with the Libyan news.

Egypt's Peril

In spite of a rapidly mounting temperature, Field-Marshal Rommel seems to have decided to give the British Eighth Army no respite, and to push onwards towards the Nile valley without further delay. It is a truly formidable undertaking. Not only are weather conditions unsuitable for active operations; but Marshal Rommel's troops, which have been fighting continuously for a month, must be exceedingly tired. One of the German leader's greatest assets in North Africa has been precisely this disregard for orthodox methods. He shares with some of Napoleon's marshals that fierce resolve which can be transmitted to exhausted troops, enabling them to fight on when, by all the normal rules of the war game, they ought to be in a state of virtual collapse. No sooner had Marshal Rommel captured Tobruk than he opened his attack on the Egyptian border. Evidently, the British had anticipated this move; for they withdrew their troops from Sollum and Halfaya Pass, and retired to the original "Wavell Line," which is based on the strong position at Mersa Matruh. According to the correspondent of the American Associated Press in Cairo, heavy fighting has been in progress for the last forty-eight hours. Marshal Rommel has concentrated all his mobile forces in an effort to overcome British resistance at Mersa Matruh. Apparently his offensive is taking the form of a three-pronged thrust. One is aimed at a point just south of Mersa Matruh, the second is moving farther to the West, while the third, of which nothing has been heard since the attack began, crossed the Egyptian border about one hundred and forty miles from the coast, at a point opposite the famous Siwa oasis, whence a desert track runs to Cairo. Following his usual tactics, Marshal Rommel by-passed some of the British positions in the earlier stages of his offensive; but it seems that the principal British strongpoints have been held, and that a stout resistance is being offered to the "Axis" advance. It is admitted in Berlin that the tempo of the offensive is slackening. Even Marshal Rommel's troops are human beings, and conditions in the Western Desert at this time of the year are simply appalling. General Auchinleck has had time during the last fortnight, since he realised that Tobruk was doomed and that a withdrawal to the "Wavell Line" was inevitable, to reinforce the Eighth Army with troops from other parts of the Middle East. According to reports from Cairo, new and powerful types of anti-tank guns have been brought into action, and so far, at any rate, Marshal Rommel has not been having things entirely his own way. Of course, there can be no doubt that, from the British point of view, the threat to the Nile Valley and the Suez Canal is serious. From the beginning the British have been at a disadvantage, not only in North Africa, but throughout the Middle East, because they had no active ally in the Mediterranean since the collapse of France. To a great extent, the "Axis" Powers have been able to treat the North African theatre of war as a home front. They have been in a position to supply Marshal Rommel with men and materials across the narrow Sicilian Channel, virtually immobilising the Royal Air Force at Malta by dint of continuous bombing attacks on the island, while the British have been forced to send their reinforcements around the Cape of Good Hope. Whether or not they will be able to maintain the North African front in the teeth of Marshal Rommel's offensive remains to be seen. General Auchinleck is faced with a heavy task. He has magnificent troops at his disposal, and probably enjoys a certain measure of superiority in the air; but on the ground, especially since the disaster at Sidi Rezegh on June 13th, his opponents have the advantage in sheer weight of metal. The main lesson of the campaign in the Western Desert is that, in tank warfare, as in the boxing ring, "the good big 'un invariably is better than the good little 'un."

Film Notes

Ave, Vale

By Our Cinema Correspondent.

EVEN a Welsh mining village must have cost a few pounds to build. The mine-owners could run them up beside the slag heaps—the outward and visible sign of their underground wealth. In the film world, being a world of illusion, effects are aimed at without causes, and the sim, even at this time is not always practised. Thus, when Hollywood wants to show us a Welsh mining village they proceed from the premise that a painted backcloth and few bits of scenery, which would satisfy us in the theatre because of the living presence of the actors, will do just as well with the camera. So a carpenter builds some pieces of wood into the shape of a street and an "artist" paints houses on it, and Donald Crisp, Sara Allgood, Walter Pidgeon, Maureen O'Hara, and Barry Fitzgerald are set in motion in the foreground, and How Green Was My Valley (Savoy) is born.

The aim in this particular case misses, perhaps, because the "shots" are not very good, or perhaps, the "artist" is not perfect in light and shadows. At all events, the village street could convince no one, and I have spent so much space saying so because this spoils the whole picture for me. That always excellent actor, Donald Crisp, seemed, instead of acting, to jerk about in front of that village street rather like a marionette.

Enough. Perhaps a critic seek too many films. I have come to know certain hallways in American mansions and hall doors and shop fronts, kept permanently in Hollywood's box of tricks, and have come to the conclusion that the reason sophisticated comedies and murder mysteries are so often more convincing in their backgrounds than these "realist" films is just because those backgrounds are permanent and more solid.

All I have left space to say now is that "How Green Was My Valley" was not awarded the Academy prize for nothing, and the mere array of actors' names makes it well worth seeing.

Horror Island (Carlton) is a tale of treasure hunting in a dark castle full of armoury, full of corpses. It runs almost to formula, of course, but Leo Carillo is at his best, supported by Peggy Moran and Dick Foran, and it seems I will never grow out of liking these "blood" baths. Eddie Horton as a Bachelor Daddy provides rollicking contrast in a well-balanced programme.

There is nothing original in Night in New Orleans (Capitol), and I do not care for Albert Dekker's acting, but Preston Foster has personality, and Patricia Morrison makes his wife amusing, and there are plenty more corpses.

Badlands of Dakota (Royal) is just what it sounds: Buffalo Bill, Calamity Jane, General Custer and his cavalry, gold and Indians. It is capably performed by Francis Farmer, Broderick Crawford, Robert Rutherford, Richard Dix and Hugh Herbert.

Small Town Deb (Corinthian) is another story of Jane Withers at the awkward age, being appreciated in the end for her personality, despite her youth. Meanwhile Jane Darwell is in the cast, "Last of the Duanes," in support, with George Montgomery, in a Zane Grey story.

Caravan (Metropole).—Charles Boyer, Loretto Young.

Babes on Broadway (Regal Rooms).—Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland.

Penn of Pennsylvania (Astor).—Clifford Evans, Deborah Kerr.

Appointment for Love (Grafton).—Charles Boyer, Margaret Sullavan.

Return of Dr. X (Green).—Humphrey Bogart, Wayne Morris. Also "Singapore Woman."

The Gentleman from Dixie (Theatre de Luxe).—Jack La Rue, Marian Marsh; also Cecilia Parker, Richard Baldwin in "Gambling Daughters." Wed.—Robert Benchley in Walt Disney's "The Reluctant Dragon"; also Anne Shirley and Charles Coburn in "Unexpected Uncle."

Kisses for Breakfast (Regent).—Dennis Morgan, Jane Wyatt; also Nancy Druon in "The Hidden Staircase." Thurs.—Wallace Beery, Leo Carillo in "Barnacle Bill."

South American George (Pavilion).—George Formby. Also Rochelle Hudson in "The Officer and the Lady." Thurs.—Orson Welles in "Citizen Kane."

T.C.D. NOTES

THIS YEAR'S EXODUS

(BY OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

After a veritable spate of examinations extending over the last few weeks, comprising the Law Science, Engineering, and Divinity Schools, Trinity will shortly settle down to its familiar summer quiescence. Agitated undergraduates, begowned, with cap in hand, relating their gruelling experiences to groups of friends, will no longer be visible around the front gate.

The exodus from college this year differs in the almost complete absence of the fabled taxi-cabs which were wont to shake up their battered old chassis at least three times a year over the no less widely-fabled cobble-stones of the front square. Most of the dwellers-in are undertaking their own transport and a weirder or more colourful collection of cases, portmanteaux, attaché boxes (including, at least, one hat-box), bags, packs, and parcels cannot be visualised. Most of the students remaining in college are there for a purpose and are anxiously awaiting their delivery from the academic atmosphere, and even the dwindling band of sun-bathers in College Park nearly all seem to have some job on hand and work away with most commendable industry despite the heat.

INTERESTING EVENT

On Thursday last the special B.A. Degree examination took place, and to-day (Monday) there is the entrance examination in Arts and Science. On Wednesday, the 1st July, the Second Summer Commencements take place, and on the following Thursday there is the Junior Freshman Midsummer examination. An event which aroused much interest in Trinity last week occurred last Saturday when part of the library of the late Professor T. B. Rudmose-Brown, was auctioned. Most of the works on sale realised very satisfactory prices, many people being anxious to secure souvenirs of a very popular professor. The Term Dinner was held on Saturday night.

The brother? Not at all man. Yerrah not at all. Shure the brother can't leave town.

Is that a fact? Why not?

The brother has to stop in town for the duration of the emergency. The Government does be callin the brother in for consultations. Of course that's between you and me and Jack Mum. The brother gave a promise to a certain party not to leave town during the emergency. He has to stand by. Because if something happened that could only be fixed up be the brother, how could your men be chasin after him on the telephone down to Strand Street, Skerries, where he goes every year to the married sister's?

Admittedly it would be awkward.

Sure you couldn't have that, man. You can't run a country that way.

I agree.

You couldn't have that at all. And do you

Officials Criticise L. G. Act

Conference in Dublin

THE Local Government Act of 1941 was criticised at the annual conference, in the City Hall, Dublin, on Saturday, of the Irish Local Government Officials' Union, by the Vice-President, who said that under Part 2, the Minister became the absolute controlling authority in all matters affecting local officers except the direction and supervision of their actual work.

He indicated that he foresaw dangers in the new situation, and said it could not be too strongly stressed that masses of orders and regulations could result only in more costly and less efficient work, however great the improvement might be in the realms of accountancy and statistics.

Three Dangers

The new President, Mr. P. O'Byrne, Staff Officer, Engineering Section, Dublin Corporation, said the three dangers which he foresaw were:—(1) That the Local Government Department, having provided all the necessary machinery for the establishment of uniform scales and conditions of service, would use those powers in a purely restrictive way; (2) that if the Local Government Department decided to fix scales they might be actuated by the spirit of parsimony, with which many of them now were only too familiar; and (3) that the service might become so "regulated" that it would become enmeshed in a tangle of "red tape."

Welcoming the delegates, the Lord Mayor said that the whole technique and machinery of local government had become more complicated, and he was proud to say that their officials had never failed to rise to the occasion and to prove themselves equal to whatever new tasks modern developments had imposed on them.

SUPERANNUATION

That was especially so since the period of emergency. Their officials had, in his opinion, deserved well of the country. In the important matter of superannuation they had, indeed, deserved better treatment than they had received. Legislation to bring about the necessary reforms in the Local Government code in that matter would have his support, and he hoped that before their next annual meeting something would have been done to put the whole question on a more equitable basis.

The General Secretary (Mr. A. Heron) introduced the report (which was adopted), and, referring to the proposed diploma in Local Government, said that discussions with representatives of the Department of Local Government were being pursued, and it was understood that the matter was again being considered by the authorities of the universities.

In regard to the Superannuation Bill, he said that it was over eight years since the Minister gave a definite undertaking to the union that legislation would be introduced providing a superannuation scheme on the lines of those contained in the Civil Service code. That undertaking had not been honoured, and the Central Council could see no reason to justify the long delay. All they could do would be to press for the introduction of the necessary legislation.

It now transpired that the present mood of the people in the Department was that the scheme would be contributory, and he thought he was speaking the mind of the Central Council and of the whole membership of the union when he said that the introduction of a contributory scheme would be regarded by them as a breach of faith.

The most scandalously underpaid section of their membership was the Library Assistants' section—in the provinces, at all events. In many instances, and in one case not so far from the centre of Dublin City life, the maximum pay of a library assistant was £130 a year inclusive. He hoped that something would be done in the matter.

It was mentioned by Mr. Heron that the union now was registered under the Trade Union Act.

He also said that proposals had been made to the Minister for some payment for the extra work done by the assistance officers on the food voucher scheme.

A vote of thanks was passed to the outgoing Chairman, Mr. Michael Cahill, Mountmellick.

Messrs. P. O'Flanagan, Central Council, Limerick; K. M. Power, Central Council, Dublin Corporation, and E. Carbery, Central Council, Cork, were elected Vice-Presidents.

The conference referred to the Central Council a motion from Cork branch: "That where temporary officials with long experience secure permanent appointment under a local body, their starting salary should be fixed with due regard to their length of service and special training, and that the union take immediate steps with a view to implementing this principle and removing the hardship imposed where appointments were made without regard to these circumstances."

COUNTRY'S NEEDS

The Lord Mayor and Mr. Daniel J. O'Donovan, Commissioner for County Dublin, responded to the toast of the guests at the lunch in the Dolphin Hotel.

Mr. O'Donovan said that there was very little difference between the outlook of the Commissioner and the outlook of his staff: both had the same work to do and the same purpose to serve. What their public administration was going to be depended largely on what they had done and what they were doing. The needs of the country were so great that it should become a rule that officials should do their work or get out. In administration generally the spirit in which they approached their problem was the important thing.

Mr. Seamus Murphy, Chairman of the Commissioners of the Dublin Board of Assistance, proposing the toast of the Union, said that he always had found the members of the union very reasonable and very ready to do their work.

Mr. Denis O'Connell, Secretary, Civil Service Association, supported, and Mr. Heron, responding, said that the Commissioners and officials were colleagues. People got no better value for their money than they got for the rates they paid.

STOCK MARKET REPORTS

DUBLIN FEATURES

Trading on the Dublin Stock Exchange during the past week was of limited dimensions, and we can hardly hope for any real improvement in this direction as long as the outlook remains so uncertain. The Minister for Supplies has pointed out that the efforts to secure essential supplies were meeting with diminishing success. Consequently Ordinary shares in industrial companies are being neglected.

The only semblance of a feature was supplied by the Railway market, as fairly good buying found the market rather short of supplies. The result was that most issues staged a quick recovery, and they still look buyers. The further curtailment in services on the Great Southern system will, it is believed, bring about a reduction in expenditure without having any serious effect on the company's revenue.

LONDON EXCHANGE

Not for the first time in the last two and a half years the stability of the London Stock Markets has been severely tested, and the result was very much what might have been anticipated. As before, the receipt of bad news had more effect upon the volume of business than upon prices. Markets were certainly weak, but there was no heavy selling, and, because of this and the continued short supply of stock, the drop in prices was not important.

It was more difficult, however, to negotiate business, for dealers quoted wider prices than usual. This state of affairs may continue for some time to come, and the likelihood that it will be followed by freer markets and perhaps an appreciable higher level of values, is a good reason for not sacrificing good securities now.

British Government stocks remaind relatively steady because of the influence of cheap and plentiful money. Naturally, there was an appreciable set-back in securities more directly influenced by the war operations in the Near East, among them being Egyptian Government Loans, National Bank of Egypt, Sudan Plantations and Anglo-Egyptian Oil "B," and Anglo-Iranian Oil, but losses in Home Industrials were mostly only moderate.

Very shortly the English Banks will announce their dividends for the first half of this year, and it is generally expected that the rates will be the same as before.

Double for Kildangan

THE substituted meeting at Phœnix Park on Saturday attracted a large attendance. Mr. R. More O'Ferrall's stable, which has not been in luck of late, struck winning form when Cherry Pie came home a neck in front of Fairlet in the Down Royal Plate, and scored a double event when Denturius conceded weight to 13 opponents in the Mullingar Plate, both winners being ridden by E. M. Quirke. Father Knapp's chance in the Powerstown Plate was spoiled when he swerved at the start, and the race was won by Mrs. Swan Song, whose first appearance on a race-course this was. Kilgowan, favourite for the Limerick Hurdle, met with interference when Queen Boadicea fell three hurdles out, and Perfect Prince scored in ready style. There was a better race for the Tramore Hurdle, in which the penalised Knight's Ward repeated her success at the last meeting after a close finish with the top weight, Point d'Atout. Blancairn had the Gowran Plate won at all stages, and the chaser, My Cherry, had an easy task in the Dundalk Plate.
Catering was by Neary's, of Chatham street.

MASONIC SCHOOL SPORTS

The two distinctions most prized by the pupils of the Masonic Orphan Boys' School, Clonskeagh, are the Cooper Award for comradeship and sportsmanship, and the Henry A. The former was awarded to Harry Risk, and on Saturday in the senior events, in which he figured off scratch, he also won the Gerty trophy. The care and attention given to the physical development of the pupils was admirably reflected in their performances all round, and a most enjoyable afternoon for visitors and boys was finished off with a high class display of physical drill by the pupils, to the accompaniment of St. George's Brass Band, and the presentation of the prizes by Mrs. Orr.
